they gave notes to checking.

"Can you tell me what other directors were overdrawn?" queried counsel for the defense.

"I don't know exactly," was the reply, "but I think pretty near all of them," and everybody laughed.

Ther counsel for the defense wanted to know if the beard of directors gave Mr. Bishop, assistance and advice, as is usual in banks.

"I sen't think I'm competent to say,"

Mr. Bishop assistance and advice, as is usual in banks.

"I den't think I'm competent to say," the witness replied. The question was the keynote of the defense, for counsel is trying to prove that there was vast negligence on the part of the directors, especially the discount committee, and that Mr. Bishop practically operated the bank, and that the directors knew that the discounted paper. Affectords showed that there was no meeting of the directors from January's to Directors from January's to Directors Cognizant of Note.

Witness paintied that he was present at the meeting of the stockholders in 1909, which confirmed the actions of the directors and re-elected the entire board, with Charles Hali Davis appresident of the institution. He said that the directors knew that the note for $21,000 was on hand, and stated that it was renewed on February 16, 1909, with the indorsation of three directors, and again for twenty digres out July 22 of the same year, with the indersation of six directors.

Then came the first of the directors, David Eigenbrun, who said that, with himself, the discount committee for 1908 was composed of Robert Cabanist and R. Lamsford. He was emphatic in his denial that authority had been vested in Mr. Bishop to discount paper, and said that he had understood that all paper was to be passed on by the committee.

come overdrawn for $50,000, and two experts sont to examine the books, were refused admission into the bank. A statement finally was made in October, when the over drafts had been covered up.

"It was all a sham," he said, "all a sham." He would prove that Mr. Bishop, himself had overdrawn to the extent of $1,700.

Mr. Lee then rose for the defense. He said if his objection were sustained, the case would end immediately. He argued that the corpus deliction had not been established, and that, therefore, collateral evidence could not be adduced. He denied that it could be proved that Mr. Bishop had made a false entry, as charge. The entry was there, he declared, and who could say that it was false?

Argument continued until 6 o'clook, adjournment was had until this morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Mullen took the admissibility of Mr. Wilson's evidence under advisement.

Mr. La Follette's statement indicates that he will oppose any further reference of the resolution to a committee, and that he will ask the Senate to consider it on the report of the contingent expenses committe.

Chim of Aul-Lerimer Senators are claiming sufficient votes to pass the resolution; and it was to be noted to-day that none of the regulars asked for the arcsent consideration of the resolution of for its reference to-day to a committee.

There is sure to be a fight over the resolution when Mr. La Follette brings it up for consideration. It is expected that Mr. Lorimer's friends will try to have it referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, and there will adopt to have it pigeon-holed or reported adversely.
